With an increased awareness of harassment in the workplace, businesses of all sizes should review, update, or create policies and procedures to protect their organization and employees. In this presentation, we'll discuss what employers need to do if they receive a complaint, what a harassment investigation process looks like, and how to create a culture that is harassment free. This presentation is great for business owners, managers, and individuals in HR roles.

Learning Objectives

Participants in this workshop will achieve these outcomes:

- Understanding of policies and procedures to have in place
- How to complete an investigation
- Steps to help create a culture that is harassment-free
